Dear Colleagues,

Self-management education of people with chronic conditions - such as diabetes, hypertension, obesity, post-myocardial infarction, asthma, epilepsy, back pain, cancer - is recognised as an essential part of treatment. Moreover spreading education for healthy lifestyles to the general population appears to be the only way to prevent the anticipated explosion of obesity, type 2 diabetes, the metabolic syndrome, and their cardiovascular complications.

Almost two years ago, the international congress Therapeutic Patient Education 2006, including the International DAWN Summit, brought together in Florence more than nine hundred professionals from all over the world, and served as an important platform for presentation and evaluation of educational efforts in the management and long-term follow-up of diabetes and other chronic diseases.

The great success of TPE 2006, and the impressive amount of research and activities, that were initiated globally to further advance the implementation of patient-centred chronic care, led us to convene Therapeutic Patient Education 2008. The congress will cover recent advances in TPE, and will create a novel possibility for experts in human sciences such as psychology, sociology, pedagogy, anthropology, bioethics, and for health professionals specialized in different chronic diseases to exchange their experiences and confront different paradigms of medicine. Again, the concurrence with the Dawn Summit will add a unique opportunity for sharing worldwide experience in therapeutic education and psycho-social care.

Still too often self-management education is limited to information and training, in a prescriptive framework. A significant aim of this congress will be the clarification of more efficient strategies to facilitate individuals' inner motivation and sustain healthy lifestyle permanent changes.

Along with scientific sessions, several optional master-classes will enable participants to exercise specific skills with the supervision of experts in the field.

Budapest, with its continental beauty, at the intersection of European history and art, appears to be a very appropriate venue for this congress.

We hope that the congress will attract again hundreds of physicians, nurses, dieticians, psychologists, podiatrists, and other health professionals working in this field, and that the series of congresses started in 2006 will be confirmed as the primary arena for discussion and diffusion of the educational approach to chronic disease management.

Yours sincerely,

Aldo Maldonato

Chair, Therapeutic Patient Education 2008

4TH INTERNATIONAL DAWN SUMMIT

The 4th DAWN Summit will once again provide a unique global venue for multi-disciplinary dialogue and better practice sharing among leading healthcare professionals, health policy-makers, and representatives of patient and professional societies who are committed to promoting person-centred care for people with diabetes and other chronic diseases in their country.

The 4th DAWN Summit is the fourth of a series of unique international events aimed at facilitating world-wide implementation of the IDF-endorsed DAWN Call to Action from 2004, calling for international and multi-disciplinary collaboration to improve the psychosocial and self-management support for people with diabetes and those at risk.

The DAWN Call to Action was developed by the international diabetes community on the basis of the international DAWN survey studies of the needs of people with diabetes and the perceptions of diabetes healthcare professionals. It was first published world-wide by the International Diabetes Federation in 2004 and subsequently widely communicated in peer reviewed, professional and lay journals.

5 goals for collaborative action were defined: 1) Enhance communication between people with diabetes and their healthcare professionals, 2) Promote team-based multidisciplinary diabetes care, 3) Promote active self-management, 4) Overcome psychosocial barriers to use of effective therapies, and 5) Improve psychological support for people with diabetes.

To reach these goals in a sustainable way, the DAWN Call to Action identified 6 areas : 1) Drive awareness and advocacy for the patient's perspective on the disease, 2) involve and educate people with diabetes and those at risk, 3) train healthcare professionals in giving self-management and psychosocial support, 4) ensure availability of simple practical tools for people with diabetes to better manage their own condition, 5) ensure that national policies and treatment guidelines fully support adequate provision of self-management support and education, and 6) support translational research focusing on psychosocial and self-management support.

The DAWN call to action has already inspired actions in more than 30 countries around the world as was showcased at the TPE 2006 congress and the ongoing DAWN programme, a Novo Nordisk initiative in collaboration with the International Diabetes Federation (IDF) and the International Society for Pediatric and Adolescent Diabetes (ISPAD) continues to support national leaders take action inspired from this through best practice sharing, concrete initiatives and dissemination of concrete tools.

In connection with the World Diabetes Day theme of 2007 and 2008 being children with diabetes, the 4th DAWN Summit will also include highlights of DAWN Youth, a new collaborative initiative by ISPAD, IDF and Novo Nordisk to explore the unique unmet needs of children and young people with diabetes and their families world-wide. Building on international survey research, patient and parent ambassadors and multidisciplinary dialogue events about the unique unmet needs of young people with diabetes, DAWN youth provides a whole new platform to truly give young people with diabetes and their families a voice to be heard. New evidence-based approaches to supporting children and young people with diabetes and their families better cope with and self-manage the condition through positive interactions with the surrounding society and caregivers are being developed as part of the DAWN Youth initiative.

In close collaboration with TPE 2008, the 4th DAWN Summit provides a unique opportunity for all TPE delegates to discuss and reflect on how the new self-management and psychosocial support strategies and tools for chronic self-managed conditions can be implemented in a sustainable way in each country through concerted multi-national and multi-disciplinary advocacy and collaboration.

We truly look forward to your active participation at the 4th DAWN Summit.

Sincerely,

On behalf of the 4th DAWN Summit Advisory Committee,
Professor Frank Snoek, International DAWN Advisor

ABOUT BUDAPEST

Known by many as the “Pearl of the Danube”, the Hungarian capital is undoubtedly one of the most beautifully located capitals in the world.

The city known as Budapest actually consists of three cities: Óbuda, the oldest section, with Celtic and Roman ruins on the Buda side of the Danube; Buda in the gently rolling hills on the western bank, famous for its historic Castle Hill and beautiful residential area; and bustling Pest with its shopping, government and commercial districts on the flat plain of the east bank.

United in 1873, Budapest is renowned as the location of one of the most beautiful World Heritage Sites.

You will find side by side the ruins of fortresses and buildings from Roman times, still operating 400 years-old Turkish baths, Gothic and Baroque buildings, and the incredibly rich Art Nouveau architectural heritage.

It is a city where the pleasing harmony of different architectural styles and superb structures, the cafés, gastronomy and culture, are combined with legendary hospitality and blend into an unforgettable experience.
